LexisNexis Academic provides fulltext documents from over 5,600 news, business, financial, legal, medical, and general reference publications with a variety of flexible search options.

To the law community, the database is used to search for legal articles in law reviews and journals. The sources are grouped together according to countries like US, UK or Canada. It is also group together by subjects.

Provided in this brochure is the basics of constructing effective LexisNexis Academic search request. For other searching techniques, please contact your librarian or attend any of the online databases training provided by your library.

Access the IIUM Library Homepage (http://lib.iiu.edu.my)
Click “Online Databases”
Explanation of the record

Click on any of the citations to view the full article.

Finding a Specific Case Using Citation
Click “Sources”. Enter the Journal Title.

Printing, Saving and E-mailing of the Case

Result: The Specific Case as Searched

Enter the Title of the Article.

Result: The Specific Case as Searched

Customer Services Division
June 2010/yab/Promo52